At a dinner not long ago Thomas W. Lawson was talking on the subject of success.

"Success in Finance," said Lawson, "is due in a great measure to prompt action. The doubting, hesitating, Hamlet type of man had best keep out of finance. He is quite sure to be swamped. The street hasn't much use for him. I had a boyhood friend of this type named Grimes. He was a falterer, a doubter, a Hamlet of the most exaggerated type."

"One evening I stopped to call on him and found him in a deep study, bent over a white waistcoat, lying on a table."

"Hello, Grimes," I said. "What's the matter?"
"This waistcoat," he replied, holding the garment up to my view, "it's too dirty to wear and not dirty enough to send to the laundry. I don't know what to do about it."—Everybody's.

MEMORY IMPROVED.
Since Leaving Off Coffee.

Many persons suffer from poor memory who never suspect coffee has anything to do with it.

The drug—caffeine—in coffee, acts injuriously on the nerves and heart, causing imperfect circulation, too much blood in the brain at one time, too little in another part. This often causes a dullness which makes a good memory nearly impossible.

"I am nearly seventy years old and did not know that coffee was the cause of the stomach and heart trouble I suffered from for many years, until about four years ago," writes a Kansas woman.

"A kind neighbor induced me to quit coffee and try Postum. I had been suffering severely and was greatly reduced in flesh. After using Postum a little while I found myself improving. My heart beats became regular and now I seldom ever notice any symptoms of my old stomach trouble at all. My nerves are steady and my memory decidedly better than while I was using coffee. I like the taste of Postum fully as well as coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).
Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

MUNICH'S NEW ZOO

Animals Kept Under Conditions of Natural State.

Park Located in Bavaria's Capital City
—New Feature of Gardens Is the Terrace Where Lions and Tigers Roam.

Munich, Bavaria.—A noteworthy zoological garden has of late been added to the many interesting sights of Munich, the capital of Bavaria. The animals will be kept as far as possible under the conditions of their natural state. This park will be a practical combination of technical skill and artistic beauty.

To the south of the city, where the air is laden with the perfumes of the great forests which cover the hills and dales of the Bavarian Alps, and on the banks of the River Isar, which rushes down foaming and roaring from the mountains, in still solitude may be found the most beautiful landscape in the environs of Munich. Pine trees, hundreds of years old, together with silver birches and knotty willows and poplars, form a forest, and beyond far-reaching green meadows rises a mighty mountain terrace, at the foot of which are clear, bubbling springs.

This charming spot was chosen for the laying out of a zoological garden ten years ago, when its present director, Lieut.-Col. Manz, commenced the preliminary work. A few years later the well known architect, Prof. Emanuel von Seidl, took over the artistic and architectural part of the work. The park has now been opened to the public for the last two years, not, however, without having found much trouble and opposition.

Coming to an open space in the woods a herd of buffaloes is found. Further along are stags from the mountains of Asia and wild bears from the forests of Europe and India.

In close vicinity of the buffaloes from America are kept specimens of the European bison from the swamps of Russia, the zebra and antelope from India, while swimming birds from all parts of the world are on the lakes and black swans, pelicans and gulls and many other kinds of fancy water fowl.

The natural character of the landscape has been preserved everywhere, and the animals have as much liberty and freedom as is possible under the circumstances. To prevent the animals from escaping, the necessary fences have been erected, but these, however, do not in the least prevent the visitors from enjoying an unobstructed view of the animals. In fact, the bars and fences, which always give the impression of cages, have in many instances been done away with and in their place deep and wide water basins with high walls have been erected, thus completely separating the animals from the spectators.

The polar bears can be seen under a wooded hill in a grotto of rocks and not far from them are the sea lions, the diving tricks of which are causing the public, and especially the children, a great deal of amusement.

The wild sheep from the African mountains and the chamois of the Bavarian Alps are found in suitable surroundings of wood clad hills, and it is extremely interesting to watch these animals climbing and jumping up and down the steep rocks.

A new feature of these zoological gardens is the lions' terraces. Here the architect has followed a new idea. In an old temple with columns and walls and hidden corners can be seen dark maned lions and the stealthy forms of tigers haunting the ruins.

An up-to-date restaurant in the gardens was also designed and built by Prof. Seidl. From the terraces of this restaurant a beautiful view over the park can be obtained. The background is formed by mountain ranges, towering into the clear atmosphere like mighty walls; their slopes, covered with green verdure and woods, present a beautiful panorama.

MANILA A MODEL FOR CHINA

New Republic Will Be Kept Busy Widening and Cleaning Her Streets.

Pekin, China.—The new republic of China indeed will have to make some dizzy strides in civic improvements to bring her streets up to the standard set by more modern cities elsewhere throughout the world. The cities of China are notorious to travelers for their narrowness and uncleanliness. Often they are more crooked than the meander of a mountain stream, and are fit for pedestrian traffic only. This condition prevails to more or less extent in all Asiatic cities, and when we occupied Manila a similar condition confronted us. For a long time our officials tried to be content with the crooked streets, but it was known that sooner or later they must be widened, straightened, and otherwise improved. Manila has many streets as dark, narrow and irregular as any to be found in Canton or Pekin. But these are being gradually straightened, usually at great expense. It is probable that China will take some lessons from our undertakings in civic betterment in their locality. All they have to do is to send some of their municipal engineers over to Manila to look around a bit. There they will find the most discouraging of thoroughfares turned into beautiful boulevards almost over night. In Manila the engineers have run transit lines right through business houses and private residences to dodge curves and angles.

PRISON SUNK 80 YEARS

So Says Commissioner Blake, New York, of Lower Cells at Sing Sing—Stories of Torture.

Albany, N. Y.—"Stories of torture of prisoners in the middle ages sound like descriptions of luxuries in comparison to the tales that have been told me of the lives that some of the prisoners in Sing Sing live."

This striking indictment of conditions alleged to exist within New York state's oldest penal institution is contained in a report of an investigation of the prison made by George W. Blake, a special commissioner appointed by Governor Sulzer to probe prison affairs. The investigator describes conditions as "frightful." The prison cells, he says, are dark, small, damp, filthy and infested with vermin. In them men contract rheumatism and go out crippled for life. Into none of the cells on the lower tiers has a ray of sunshine entered for 80 years. Certain prisoners, Mr. Blake asserts, through political influence or by the payment of money, receive favors. He has evidence, he says, showing that because of influence, extorted by men well known in various walks of life, money has been wrung from persons seeking clemency for prisoners.

"The worst feature of the prison management cannot be discussed in any public document," says the report, "but the subject is of such vital importance to the welfare of the state that no time should be lost in submitting it to the attention of men competent to present a method of bettering a condition that breeds disease of the mind and body and that should touch the hearts of every man with any human instincts."

FEET OF POLICE TICKLED

Three St. Louis Officers Ask for Transfers, Saying Jars Make Them Seisick.

St. Louis, Mo.—Here is a real police shakeup:

Three members of the traffic squad have asked to be put back on beats because the vibration caused by the trains running through the tunnel and street cars on the surface is shaking them up so that they feel seasick nearly all the time, and their nerves are so affected that they can't keep their feet still.

The men who have asked to be transferred are Frank Dempsey, at Eighth street and Washington avenue; John Smith, at Seventh street and Washington avenue, and George Stowell, at Olive and Ninth streets. These stations are almost directly over the Eads bridge tunnel, through which many trains pass every day.

ORATORY LET LOOSE

REPUBLICANS TO ENTER FIELD OF ARGUMENT TO SECURE TARIFF CHANGES.

THREE MONTHS OF DEBATE

Country Will Be Obligated to Get Along on Payne-Aldrich Tariff Until the Brown October Days and Perhaps Longer.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—It was originally the intention of the Republican senators to say little or nothing in debate on the customs measure which is now in the senate's keeping. It was only a day or two ago that the Republicans seemed to get a second thought on the matter and to agree that it would be a good plan to enter into the field of argument and to make some attempt to secure amendments to their liking. The fact that six Democratic senators expressed a desire for public hearings on the bill gave the protection Republicans some hope that by a combination with these Democrats on certain things in the bill it would be possible to force changes.

When the Democrats who spoke in favor of public hearings changed their minds under the power of majority persuasion, some of the Republicans re-adopted their old plan of saying only enough on the various schedules to get a party record of opposition with which to go before the country one year from next fall in case the law, as the Democrats pass it, shall prove to be injurious to the country's business.

The finance committee is taking its time to discuss the measure before it is reported to the senate. Eight weeks will be taken up with the debate in the open chamber, even if the Republicans check their oratory. If they fail to check it there probably will be three months of debate, and should these various "ifs" have their way the country will be obliged to get along with the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill until the brown October days, and perhaps longer.

"Pauperized Labor" Again.

From the nature of the discussion preliminary to the settlement of the public hearings question it is perfectly evident that during the debate on the various paragraphs of the bill "pauperized labor" is to be used for all it is worth. Labor as a pauper under reduced tariff conditions has walked through the senate chamber on many an occasion before this. It knows every entrance and every exit, and it knows the place in the senate aisle where it must stand while high protectionists point to it as the ghost of the horrible example as to what is to come in the flesh "if the downward revisionists have their fell way."

If the tariff bill now in the senate provided for the destruction of every custom house in the country and for the placing upon the free list of every article now imported or likely to be imported into the United States, no more ghastly picture of the future would be drawn by the protectionists than that which is being drawn today. The bill, however, it is claimed by the Democrats, is not a free trade measure nor anything like an approach to one save in some instances. It is, however, a bill which in the few free trade cases in point may work hardship to some industries. This is admitted by a good many Democrats privately, but even those who make the admission, except in one or two cases, will vote for the bill and trust that it will do enough general good in the way of reducing the high cost of living, to save the Democratic party from defeat even if some injury is done to an industry here and an industry there.

The debate in the senate is bound to be interesting throughout from the political point of view, but there is no present prospect that any argument will be advanced by any opponent of the bill powerful enough to sway the Democratic majority of the senate from its determination to pass the measure as it is, or virtually as it is. Senator Works of California may talk a week on the measure. Mr. Works is a near-Progressive but his tariff views probably will not be those of the Progressive party.

LaFollette Will Talk.

Robert M. LaFollette also intends to talk at length on the tariff bill, so it is understood. He may "go it alone" for he has in his head a well defined personal idea of just what a tariff should be, whether it affects onions, wool or diamonds. Mr. LaFollette is certain, it is said, to bring politics into his discussion or the tariff, and it is virtually assured that he will have some things to say about the political developments of the last year, developments which seemingly were not all to the liking of the Wisconsin senator.

There never has been a tariff debate yet which politics as politics did not cut very much of a figure. There are now three parties represented in the senate. There have been all kinds of political happenings within the last twelve months. The two Chicago conventions and their outcomes will be discussed when wool is supposed to be the one subject for debate; the Baltimore convention, its outcome and its preliminaries will form the frequent text for speeches when sugar should be holding the attention of the statesmen. It will be a tariff drama with the rates playing minor parts through many of the scenes.

USE OF ELECTRICITY

Veteran Inventor of California Has New Device.

"Artificial Hen" Promises to Be Success When Power Is Abundant and Cheap—Can Be Attached to Any Incubator.

An electrical incubator has been developed by C. L. Byce of Petaluma, Cal., a veteran maker of incubators, says the Popular Electricity. The electric "artificial hen" is perhaps the most advanced product of his inventive genius and promises to be a commercial success when electrical power is abundant and cheap in the districts devoted to poultry raising. The inventor describes his device as follows: "For several years in our experimental rooms and at poultry shows and fairs we have used the electric current for hatching and brooding and many dealers have made use of a single globe in their show windows to keep the chicks warm when exhibited there. Our company was the first to use electricity for artificial brooding and hatching, and as far back as 1906 we hatched chicks in this way at the California state fair.

"The regulator controls the flow of the current so nicely that the temperature is almost perfectly even. Of course the device is practical only in places where a twenty-four hour service is maintained by the power companies and where the price of the current is not excessive. To use electricity for our incubators it is not necessary to purchase special complete outfits. The device is simple and can be attached to any of our incubators at a trifling expense. It is connected by simply screwing an ordinary electric plug into the lamp socket of any standard electric light fixture and turning on the key."

POSSIBLE REMEDY FOR ROUP

Disease Is Difficult to Cure and Affected Birds Should Be Removed to Roomy Coop.

Roup may be known from an offensive discharge from the nostrils and swelling below the eyes. The swelling in some cases entirely closes the eyes. This disease is known as roup, and is difficult to cure. Remove all the healthy fowls. Put the affected ones in a warm, dry shed or roomy coop.

Wash out the nostrils and mouth with warm water, using a small syringe to do so; then put a piece of camphor the size of a hickory nut into one quart of boiling water and hold the fowl's head over it for ten minutes; repeat three times a day. Also give one teaspoonful of cod liver oil at a dose twice a day. If the swelling closes the eyes, open them and syringe out the yellow matter and wash with warm water into which a drop of carbolic acid has been thoroughly stirred.

Fowls that are badly diseased should be killed and buried. Clean out the house, dust with fresh air-slaked lime, fork up the yard and spread over it a thick coat of fresh air-slaked lime. Add a few drops of bromide of potassium to the drinking water. Give no other water. This is the best method to use.

Best Poultry Tonics.

Fresh air, sunshine and exercise are the best poultry tonics. But fresh air does not mean drafts in the houses, nor does sunshine call for exposure to hot suns during the summer. The houses should be so constructed that fresh air can constantly be present to drive out bad odors and purify the atmosphere.

The sunshine should be able to reach every corner to destroy any germs that might be lurking in dampness. The fowls should exercise by scratching that a good circulation of the blood may be stimulated. The above are the three best medicines in the poultry doctor's arm.

Follow Directions.

It is better to follow closely the directions that accompany each incubator.
